West Kelowna dying for urgent care centre

Head of residents' association says trip to Kelowna is too far for some

By DON PLANT

More Westsiders need an urgent-care centre than Interior Health is accounting for, said Joe Lavigne.

The president of the West Kelowna Residents' Association says health officials underestimate the demand for medical services on the Westside by failing to consider how much the

A milfoil rototilling vessel operated by the Okanagan Basin Water Board works off of Hot Sands Beach in City Park on Thursday morning, ripping up non-native Eurasian water milfoil. The machine, one of three working in the Okanagan, uses a paddle-wheel propulsion system and can reach down to almost five metres to remove the milfoil, which appeared in Okanagan Lake in the 1960s.
