Water unites leaders

Morning Star Staff

First Nations and elected officials from around the Okanagan are discussing the benefit of joint water infrastructure projects.

A meeting in Penticton Tuesday attracted representatives from across the valley including the Okanagan Indian Band, Vernon and Lake Country.

"We also share one water in this valley and depend on each other for good water quality," said Anna Warwick Sears, with the Okanagan Basin Water Board.

"At the same time, we are faced with aging infrastructure that needs costly upgrades. But, we're all neighbours and there are opportunities to work together on these issues."

The Federation of Canadian Municipalities' Community Infrastructure Partnership Program connects municipalities with adjacent First Nation communities to improve the way infrastructure services are provided (water, sewer, roads).
