

"Make Water Work" this summer

The Daily Courier | Posted: Wednesday, July 9, 2014 1:27 pm

Politicians from through out the valley took part in a press conference Wednesday to kick off the Okanagan Basin Water Board, its Okanagan WaterWise program, "Make Water Work" challenge, now in its fourth year. Make Water Work ( MWW ) is a valley-wide effort to encourage outdoor water conversation during the hot Okanagan summers, when the most water is used. As part of this year's initiative, mayors and their municipal councillors are taking the pledge to Make Water Work and challenging other Okanagan residents to do the same. Residents who take the pledge at www.MakeWaterWork.ca will be entered to win $5000 in WaterWise yard upgrades.

Blooming flowers without water

Mayor Doug Findlater of West Kelowna and chair of the Okanagan Basin Water Board looks over Gaillardia Burgandy flowers that are part of The UnH2O Garden, a xeriscape demonstration garden at the H2O Adventure and Fitness Centre on Gordon Drive.