Kids challenged to be climate heroes

Staff Mar 21, 2019

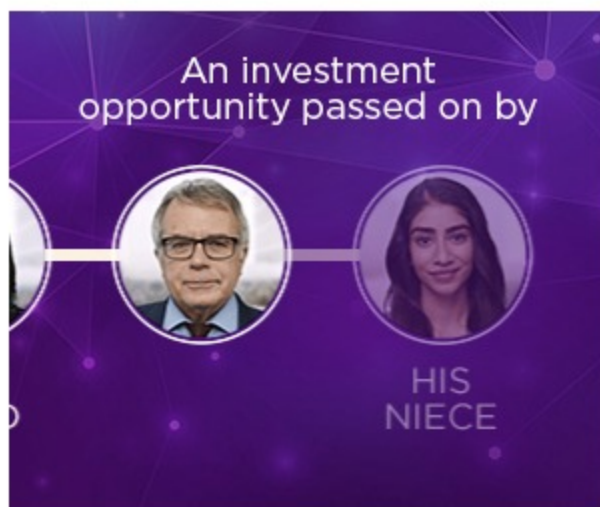

The Okanagan Basin Water Board is inviting young people to be climate heroes and enter its seventh annual youth challenge.

Youth from five to 18 years of age can be climate heroes by participating in activities that improve our water and our planet.

On the Challenge section of the OKWaterWise.ca website, teachers, parents and youth will find contest details, including activities to learn more about the issues and challenges to tackle these issues head on.

Challenges include joining the #trashtag effort to clean wetlands, creeks and beaches.

Other potential activities include planting indigenous trees to absorb carbon and give off oxygen.

As part of the contest entry, participants must submit a multimedia entry (e.g. video, photo essay, drawings, etc.) that demonstrates their efforts and invites others to join in.

Participants will be entered to win water prizes, including, for class entries, a two-hour boat charter on Okanagan Lake for an on-the-water classroom experience. Entries are due April 30.
