

The Current with Matt Galloway

How scorching temperatures and water shortages are affecting the Okanagan Valley

Play Segment

24:25

Share Segment

Summer in B.C. brought scorching heat, drought, and even cooked some fruit still on the trees. Matt Galloway recently visited the Okanagan Valley to find out how people are coping. We hear from Sukhpal Bal, a cherry grower in Kelowna and president of the B.C. Cherry Association; and Corinne Jackson, with the Okanagan Basin Water Board.

Aired: Sep. 20, 2021

LISTEN HERE: <https://www.cbc.ca/listen/live-radio/1-63-the-current/clip/15867290-how-scorching-temperatures-water-shortages-affecting-okanagan-valley>

Transcript at: <https://www.cbc.ca/radio/thecurrent/the-current-for-sept-20-2021-1.6182232/monday-september-20-2021-full-transcript-1.6183000>